FACULTY OF ARTS AND HUMANITIES

Journalism

What is Journalism?

If you are curious by nature, like to investigate and analyze information, want to report information objectively, love all forms of communication, like to express your point of view, then this major is surely for you!

American University of Technology, Decree N° 846, dated 18/1/2008

Why study Journalism at AUT?

AUT adopts the latest trends in journalism and media including e-reporting, web news, and multimedia. The program is formulated to give you training in gathering, analyzing & organizing information for effective communication, excellence in Arabic and English objective reporting, news editing, information analysis, data search, interview skills, TV and radio program hosting and other areas needed in media today.

It also includes workshops on specific topics given by professional journalists and media experts and requires you to spend internship periods at major TV networks, print media and digital media companies

Where do I find work?

Our program, which includes 99 credits, trains you to work in all types of media including TV networks, radio stations, newspapers, magazines, the Internet, digital and social media, and in public relations and marketing companies, universities and other institutions that need to publish and broadcast news and information.
